A 1992 boating safety class at Coast Guard Air Station San Francisco motivated Vietter and Blanchard to join the Auxiliary. They became boat crewmembers in 1994. “My late wife Linda and I became crew-qualified, and after a few years of crewing on others’ boats, we decided to get our own vessel,” reflected Blanchard. They served as crew aboard a number of Auxiliary assets, including their own Auxiliary Operational Facility (OPFAC) Tuggles, a 24-foot red and white Murphy tugboat. With several years of Auxiliary boat crew experience, the couple began searching for a custom-built boat that would suit their patrol needs. They made multiple trips to the Pacific Northwest during the fall and winter of 1998-99, visiting multiple builders from Puget Sound to British Columbia. “We picked up a free boating magazine and found an ad for Dagle Welding in Campbell River on Vancouver Island,” explained Blanchard. Dagle Marine builds commercial and recreational Eagle Craft boats, ranging from water taxis and patrol vessels to recreational fishing boats and luxury cruisers.   SAN FRANCISCO – U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Coxswain Terry Blanchard is at the helm of Operational Facility Silver Charm during Coast Guard Air Station San Francisco Standardization (STAN) team training on Monday, March 7, 2022.
